I'm a retired person living in a ~~new~~ older home. My home is well insulated & I practice all energy-saving things that I know about & read about.

Last winter I closed off my bedroom, kept the thermostat on the low 60's & slept on my couch.

I don't qualify for any "winter-help" ect. on my utilities.

I'd like to be financially independent & live in my own home as long as possible, but with rising utilities, along with other rising expenses it's becoming harder.

I know other people who are in the same situation, but you'll never hear from them because they think it's a waste of time to write, like I'm doing.

Respectfully,

D. Lee
