Dear Public Service Commission,

We can't afford to pay more. Especially when LG&E-KU aren't seriously working towards improving energy efficiency and other programs that actually help people lower their bills, while also cutting our ability to invest in low-cost, rooftop solar that would reduce the need to build expensive power plants in the future.

Subject: Data centers

Do Kentuckians want data centers? I can't speak for others, but I don't want them. I am aware of many complaints from places that have them. I am concerned about the amount of water and electricity they consume and who pays? . Building gas plants to accommodate them is moving our state backwards when it is vital we reduce our environmental footprint. Who benefits? Will it be everyday Kentuckians or the investors? Will it give Kentuckians new job opportunities? From what I read, data centers do not create large numbers of jobs. Does the state give them tax incentives, and if so, how do they help Kentuckians? What about noise pollution? Kentucky already has abused its land and water. Isn't time we put people and a healthy environment as our top priority?

I hank you for considering my concerns.

Dear Public Service Commission,

We cannot afford to pay more! LG&E-KU is not seriously working towards improving energy efficiency and other programs that help people lower their bills. They are also cutting our ability to invest in low-cost, rooftop solar that would reduce the need to build expensive power plants in the future. The “large-load tariff” to try and determine who pays for new energy infrastructure built for specific industrial purposes (i.e., when a new data center is proposed and to build a whole new gas plant to power it) does not offer enough protection for residential and small business ratepayers. We need strong protections now! Not after new infrastructure/gas plants are built. Any data centers constructed in the State of KY should have their energy infrastructure paid for by them not the citizens of Kentucky. Individuals do not need AI and instant searches that these data centers allow. I am tired of corporations breaking the backs of citizens to increase profits!

Also, recovery for Smart Meters should not be allowed. The savings from reduced labor costs should more than cover the cost of these meters.
