Dear Public Service Commission,

I'm writing not for myself, but on behalf of many friends and family members that live in Richmond and Lexington. They are struggling financially, and do not have the time to investigate bills that will lead to a raise in their utilities, they are just struggling to get by. As the bill stands, I think it does not serve the people well. I would encourage more protections for small businesses and residential areas, so we are not paying for data centers we won't see any benefit for. The basic service charge shouldn't be what goes up, and if it is, it should be used intelligently, passing the saving onto others, reducing the barriers for installing rooftop solar in order to diversify our energy grid and build resilience. We should not be financially punishing those who've invested in rooftop solar, instead encouraging more! Thank you for the service you provide for Kentuckians, but I believe you can do better than this.

Michael Meham
