

Mr. Pratt-

As always, your comments will be placed into the case record for case 2007-00134. Thank you for your ongoing interest in this matter.

Andrew Melnykovych
Director of Communications
Kentucky Public Service Commission
(502) 564-3940 x 208

RECEIVED
MAR 18 2008
PUBLIC SERVICE
COMMISSION

---

From: PSC - Public Information Officer
Sent: Tuesday, March 18, 2008 9:50 AM
To: Melnykovych, Andrew (PSC)
Subject: FW: Lexington's water supply

---

From: Don Pratt[SMTP:REDACTED]
Sent: Tuesday, March 18, 2008 9:49:49 AM
To: Lewis, Kathy S (PSC); PSC - Public Information Officer
Subject: Lexington's water supply
Auto forwarded by a Rule

Case number: 2007-00134.

As an experienced observer of political, and business ongoing(s), I have become disappointed with so much concerning how we supply our water and who owns that system.

I have seen KY AM's well "PAID" staff battling to dominate what may be our method of water supply for great financial benefit to them and, more importantly, their employers.

Their PSC testimony truly reminded me of "putting too many cattle in one small lot leading to way too much stinking BS in that small space, and in such a short, planned time." Their planning/manipulation were interrupted by concerned citizens.

KY AM Water Company's planning for this has been ongoing from long ago, including using Bluegrass Water Supply Commission's work and goodwill for their own gain.

However, KY AM has never shown, nor has it been a cause of their public relations, that needs of the ratepayers and consumers was their priority, only control, control and control.

With Louisville Water Company's entry, due to public pressure, KY AM simply attacked, attacked and attacked.

It is obvious. Control was the plan and the goal.

This KY AM Central Kentucky Solution reminds me of a well known insect's behavior which is warning in itself. Look at the praying mantis. The female treatment of her mate is what I see as our danger in relying on the RWE/American Water Works/Kentucky American Water Company's "Central Kentucky Solution." The praying mantis kills her mate.

Enough said.

Don Pratt
210 Walton Ave.
Lexington, KY. 40502
REDACTED