Dear Public Service Commission

It does not take a brain surgeon, even one such as the likes of Jethro Bodine Clampett to see through the total stupidity of Kentucky-American Waters plan to run a pipeline from Owen County to Fayette. Here is a private, foreign owned, for profit company, that has a history of asking for forgiveness rather than permission to do things (i.e. your own penalties against them), that now wants to destroy another piece of our fast disappearing, beautiful, bluegrass area for the sake of profit.

The Louisville Water Company's plan would more than meet the needs of the bluegrass area for years to come and with less environmental damage. Even KAW has said they would need to go back to the Ohio in just a few years. Where is the logic? Let us meet the needs and demands of Kentucky taxpayers and rate payers by selecting the only logical choice presented by the Louisville Water Company.

Sincerely

Lee Troutwine
