COMMENTS: The KAW pipeline proposal simply doesn't make economic sense. The proposal is intended to give the citizens of central KY a certain plan for permanent or at least long-term solution to water shortages in the region. However, even KAW has to admit that the KY River will not meet long-term needs & there must be a later pipeline to the Ohio River, costing the ratepayers even more. The Louisville Water solution makes much more sense, saving both the environment and money for the ratepayers; not to mention solving the long-term water needs for all of central KY. In one step by creating the two-River solution that every expert believes is the ultimate solution. Louisville Water Co has guaranteed no wholesale rate hike for several years and future rate increases tied to the consumer price index, while KAW is already requesting double-digit increases. For pipeline cost and ratepayer expense, the Louisville Water Co is the best
