I live over by the Mill Creek LG&E plant, and was watching the news when they had there discussion about why they needed the increase for utilities, one of the reasons presented to the rate commission was to up grade their plants, that's the same reason they have been using for the past three years and getting an increase, since I purchased my house in this area. Well they haven't done any repairs on any of their stacks, I have called the EPA, City Counsel for district 14 and the Mayors office, about the noise coming from there and the acid rain that is ruining every thing within a three mile radius, I have videos of the chemicals coming out of the stacks, and the only time you see it is when it's gloomy outside so the can try to hide it in the gray clouds, I have collected air samples plus rain samples of the pollution that comes from this plant but no one will do anything about it.

I know the only reason they want the raise is to cover there loss from the high gas prices and the wind storm damages, that they evidently didn't have insurance to cover their loss, like they kept telling all of their customers to put in claims for the damage done, and didn't this state (KY) declare it as a state of emergency like Indiana did and get federal assistance to cover their loss.

Their not the only one that had to suffer with the high gas prices, just for the three days we were without power I cost me over $200.00 to keep our generator running so we wouldn't lose our food and LG&E isn't going to reimburse me for my losses of the higher fuel prices.

Thank you for the time in this matter.
