To the Greedy E-On Group,
I would like to know how in the world you people think it is OK for us to pay for your bills. Did you replace the food in my fridge/freezer when I had to dump it? Did you deduct at least 15 days from my bills (September or January) last year when I was without your product? Can you explain why you think this increase is proper? I think a few answers would be helpful to those of us who have to pay their own bills. Don't tell us its your bottom line. We have those too.

Since you refuse to listen to your customers when they ask that the lines be buried to help guard against such disasters, why should we even begin to back your policies? Remember that doing the same thing and expecting a different result is the height of stupidity.

You are greedy to the max and your pocket is the only thing you care about. You make poor people scramble to stay warm/cool and the middle class you've built your empire on is a dwindling population. I imagine utilities taste about as good as crude oil. We're learning to live with less of the black gold and we could learn to live less of your product as well. Think about it.....
Thanks,Glynda Kelso
