As a PPL shareholder, (and therefore, a LG&E shareholder), I am opposed to the positions LG&E has taken re net metering. I urge the PSC to rule that the present net metering structure shall be maintained, and that 'customer-generator' rooftop solar installations will be encouraged in coming years.

We know that our electric utilities will have to change soon to increasing reliance on renewable sources. A cost for carbon emissions is clearly on the horizon. In the coming clean energy economy, distributed energy resources will become increasingly valuable. In this context, a significant amount of rooftop solar as a form of distributed energy resource will be very positive for Kentucky.

The proposals LG&E has put forward will discourage such distributed energy resources. Also, their proposal would hurt small commercial and residential customers. Please rule against them, and give distributed generation the value it deserves.

Thank you.

Wallace McMullen
