State the nature of your concern: I took the time to review the application from Jessamine South Elkhorn Water District for their proposed water and sewer rate increases. The increase is to pay debt from water revenues versus the current method of paying out of depreciation reserves. My question is why this practice was ever done. Depreciation is a method for funding new equipment as the original needs replacement, thus the reserve balance. In my opinion the Water District is poorly managed for this to have ever happened and passing along the effects of poor management to consumers is unfair. I don't ask tax payers to pay for any of my mistakes. Additionally, the cost of pension/retirement cost is extraordinarily high in relation to salaries and wages. The PUBLIC SERVICE Commission should act in the best interest of the PUBLIC, not the utility service that has zero accountability.

Have you contacted the utility about the problem: No
