In support of its motion, Christian District stated that it had been gathering responsive records and coordinating with its accounting personnel, independent auditor, and rate consultant.³ Christian District explained that additional time was needed to obtain and review supporting information, complete the requested reconciliations and workpapers, and conduct a technical review of its revised rate-study model.⁴ Christian District further stated that this was its first request to extend this response deadline and that the requested extension would not affect any other deadline established in this proceeding.⁵
