Redesigned Acura RDX combines comfort, value

The 2013 RDX features comfortable leather seats and a 5-inch color display.

By DAVID THOMAS, CARS.COM

2013 Acura RDX
 Starting MSRP: $34,920 to $35,720

The redesigned 2013 Acura RDX is better armed to win over shoppers — it's larger, lighter and more efficient — while offering an attractive value proposition.

Not only is the RDX larger inside and out, it's lighter, features a different optional all-wheel-drive system and, most important, there's a standard V-6 engine under the hood that's more efficient.

The 3.5-liter V-6 in the new RDX features cylinder deactivation, is teamed to a new six-speed automatic transmission and returns not only better power — 273 hp versus 240 hp — but also significantly better fuel economy: 20/28 mpg city/highway versus 19/24 mpg. Premium is recommended to achieve those figures but isn't required.

On the road, power builds at a somewhat slower pace than the previous turbo generation provided, but it's a more consistent experience. Leaving a stoplight isn't as energizing, but accelerating onto a highway on-ramp or passing cars at highway speeds are easier maneuvers with the new V-6.

There's more body roll in tight turns; the brakes are not as grabby and the ride is softer. For performance fans, the RDX is definitely a step back, but for the average car shopper, it is a huge step forward because the experience is more comfortable.

Inside, there are more contours to the dash, lush padding on the leather sections of the doors, and more curvaceous lines nearly everywhere.

The leather seats are exceptionally comfortable, with wide seat bottoms. I also liked the numerous cubbies and small cargo compartments in the RDX.

Standard on all RDX models are keyless entry, push-button start, leather seats, a backup camera, Bluetooth connectivity, a USB port, and 5-inch color display.

2013 Kia Sorento keeps some prices the same

Base price for the 2013 Sorento crossover is $23,950 for the LX model.

KICKNOTICES.NET

Kia's popular compact crossover, the Sorento, gets more standard and optional equipment for model-year 2013.

Prices for the base four-cylinder Sorento LX model stay the same — $23,950 for front-wheel drive and $26,150 for all-wheel drive, including an $800 destination fee — and other models see modest price increases and decreases for the year.

The Sorento's LX, EX and SX trim lineup returns for 2013, as do the 3.5-liter V-6 and 2.4-liter four-cylinder powertrains matched with a six-speed automatic transmission. Outside, only a revised Kia badge on the hood and left gate mark 2013 models.

Leather seating trim is now standard on EX models and a third-row bench is also standard on LX V-6 trims; it's newly optional on EX V-6 and SX models. A third row was previously standard on SX models.

Other new options include wider availability of Kia's UVO communication and entertainment system and a new LX Convenience Package, which features an eight-way power driver's seat, leather-wrapped steering wheel and shift knob, floor mats and a first-aid kit.

2013 Kia Sorento
 What's changed
 ■ Most significant changes: Newly standard are leather seats in EX models and a third-row bench in LX V-6 versions. The SX trim loses its standard third row.
 ■ Price change: Varies by trim level — some stay the same, increase modestly and even decrease for 2013.
 ■ On sale: Now.

Reading coaches needed

Community Recorder
"One to One: Practicing Reading with Students" is now registering for fall training for the 2012-2013 academic year.
One to One trains volunteers to produce measurable, positive results for first-through third-grade students who are struggling with reading. The volunteers, or reading coaches, practice with the same student for 35 minutes once a week in a simple format that emphasizes reading, writing and building basic skills.
Volunteer opportunities exist at 35 elementary schools throughout Northern Kentucky. Coaching sessions are arranged with individual teachers based on the volunteer's availability. Both daytime and evening training sessions are available at multiple locations throughout the region in August.
For more information, or to register for upcoming training, visit the Northern Kentucky Education Council at www.nkyec.org or contact Nancy Costello at ncostello@nkyec.org or 859-282-9214.
