The Duke Energy ad didn't run in the Campbell & Kenton zones due to a system error. Ads were not being mapped correctly due to the new PGL pagination system being implemented. That involved a lot of manual work and these ads were deleted in the process.

CAROLYN HAX

Avoid insults in correcting behavior

Adapted from a recent online discussion.

Dear Carolyn: Is there a difference between being called an idiot (for example) and someone saying you're acting like an idiot? Supposedly, one is less offensive than the other, according to a certain significant person in my life.

- Matter of semantics?

I think there's a huge difference, but that doesn't matter.

Your significant person thinks so, and that's what matters, right? And you apparently don't agree, which of course also matters.

So: (a) Stop calling this or any person an idiot, and instead say he or she is acting like one; even better, find a nicer way to make your point altogether.

And: (b) When he or she asks you to stop acting like an idiot, resist the urge to react and instead consider the context.
