semifinalist for top teacher award

FRANKFORT A Carter County elementary school teacher is one of three finalists for the prestigious Kentucky Elementary School Teacher of the Year award and a semifinalist for the Kentucky Teacher of the Year award, according to the Kentucky Department of Education.

Jennifer Daniel, who teaches at Olive Hill Elementary, is one of nine teachers from across the state in line for the awards. The nine include three elementary, three middle and three high school teachers.

Winners of the Elementary, Middle and High School Teacher of the Year awards, in addition to the overall 2017 Kentucky Teacher of the Year, will be announced at a ceremony at 10 a.m. October 19 in the Rotunda of the Capitol Building in Frankfort.

The nine semifinalists are among 24 educators who were named 2017 Valvoline Teacher Achievement Award winners. They were chosen based on their scores from the first round of judging, which was conducted by a blue-ribbon panel of veteran educators. Applications included information on nominees' teaching philosophies, teaching experiences, involvement in their respective communities and letters of recommendation.

Classroom visits and personal interviews with each of the nine semifinalists will result in the selection of the 2017 Elementary School, Middle School and High School Teach-

When your baby girl was due to arrive, you were beside rolled the stone aside. Then Jesus looked up to heaven and said, 'Father, thank you for hearing me. You always hear me, but I said it out loud for the sake of all these people standing here, so they will believe you sent me.' Then Jesus shouted, 'Lazarus, come out!' And Lazarus came out, bound in grave-clothes, his face wrapped in a headcloth. Jesus told them, 'Unwrap him and let him go!' (verses 38-44)

Do you expect to see God's glory when you pray? Do you have faith that God always hears you? It's pretty safe to say that you have seen a miracle from God in your own life. Did you recognize it? Believe -- and witness the glory of God.

Love and blessings to you all.

most of two days just talking, visiting with each other, going to Our Appalachia Day and Yoder's. We ate at home, DQ and Bonici's; simple pleasures. Lawrence, Mary, Emily, and Randy climbed to the top of the high and steep mountain behind our home, while Ruth and I stayed at the house, crocheting and talking. Our three dogs enjoyed their company too. Several of Ruth's and Mary's friends from years ago were in church yesterday, and others they saw on the ALC campus Saturday.

Our public school children and youth enjoyed their Fall break last week; Alice Lloyd College and June Buchanan School will have theirs this week. Sports events are in full swing. Parents stay busy driving their children to practice and ball games. All three of our children were in marching band, and David played football and baseball. Though it was exhausting, I miss the days when we took them and attended all these events; it was a lot of joy, too.

I was scanning Facebook a while ago and saw this picture of the late Verna Mae (Mrs. Willie) Slone taken on the porch of their home here in Bunion

We wish a happy birthday to Jane Parks and our grandson Justin Ware on Friday, the 14th; to Anna B. Chaffins and Michael Gayheart on the 16th; to Cloys Thornsberry and Hansel Dixon on the 17th; and to Barbara Smith on the 20th. Those with anniversaries are Robby and Pam Morgan on the 14th; also Brent and Heather Smith, as well as John and Sharon Calhoun on the 20th. May God bless them all with many more!

Friday evening Kate (Mrs Adam) Bentley, daughter of Darrell and Maylynn Sparkman, came by to deliver a dozen of Krispy Kreme lemon-filled doughnut we had ordered from a JBS fundraiser. I was very pleased that she brought her little son Maven with her, who was sleeping peacefully in the back seat of the car. Maven has been sick, in and out of the hospital, since his recent birth. We are so thankful that he is doing much better.

I keep hearing that the winter will be long and harsh, according to the wooly-worms which are solid black. I haven't seen any yet, except for in pictures. We will see what happens, and it will soon be here. Prepare as best you can, and when the best ever stopped it without direct intervention by any IT people there was that it had simply "up and died."

You're not going to find a Windows server that can accomplish that. Period.

Linux is also based on a very important philosophy called open source. That is, the source code, the original program code that makes up Linux, is free, completely downloadable and usable, for pretty much any project you want to do, including creating your own operating system.

The concept of open source is very important. It's free as in freedom, not as in free beer. However, it still doesn't cost anything to acquire and use. And it never will. The freedom aspect means that it sets you free from the shackles of proprietary software. That's software that's owned by someone and usually contains very restrictive licensing agreements. It also usually costs money. So you can't have the code. If you want the code, you usually have to pay a hefty fee for it and that's even if they offer the code for sale. Even if you can buy it, they'll usually place restrictions on how you can and a program instead of writing for the interpreter to re potentially thousands of lines of code. Using this application, you can create repository and graphics on-the-fly. a Google search for Jupyter Notebook and you'll see what a great tool it is.

Catherine Devlin, president of the Dayton Dynamic Languages users group a developer for an organization called 18F. According to Devlin, they are an organization of Linux and open source developers that primarily work with government contractors to improve the look, feel and functionality of government websites. They can not only fix broken code but also design sites and web apps from the ground up to improve user experience and make navigating and gathering government information easy and accessible.

Representatives from various Linux distributions we on-hand to explain the benefits of using their products. Those distros included Ubuntu, openSUSE and SUSE Enterprise, the at-cost version of a long-standing Linux operating system.

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Division of Abandoned Mine Lands announced at the end of September that eKentucky Advanced Manufacturing Institute, Inc. (eKAMI) had been given preliminary approval for a $2.5 million grant by the Office of Surface Mining and Reclamation Enforcement (OSMRE) for an advanced manufacturing training project in Johnson County.

The money would fund the establishment of an HTEC Advanced Manufacturing Training Center in Paintsville, providing National Institute of Metalworking Skills (NIMS) certified CNC skills training on state of the art equipment and to prepare students for employment as CNC machinists.

OSMRE has also given preliminary approval for a $5 million grant for the city of Pikeville to build a 50,000-square-foot spec building on about 400 acres of abandoned mine land that city officials envi-

House Appropriations Committee, was instrumental in securing the $30 million through the FY 2016 Omnibus appropriations bill.

"I'm pleased that we can put federal dollars back into Eastern Kentucky in projects such as this that will provide jobs and long-term economic stability," Rogers said.

The AML Pilot project is a joint effort by Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development, the Department for Local Government, the Kentucky Tourism, Arts and Heritage Cabinet and the Energy and Environment Cabinet, Division of Abandoned Mine Lands.

eKAMI has applied for funding from the Appalachian Regional Commission to support the proposed project as well as to the HAAS Foundation.

Additional partners providing assistance include Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP) which is funding the training costs of unemployed participants from the 23-county region it serves up to $2 million.

PHAG zement Besides the acquisition and on coal has negatively affected Appalachian communities.

Pikeville officials have said the Marion Branch Industrial Park development project will aid in developing a flourishing economy in the region by providing a resurgence of jobs through the importation of both large and small companies that locate in the park.

Counties eligible to apply for grant money include Martin, Lawrence, Johnson, Floyd, Magoffin, and Pike in the Big Sandy region as well as Adair, Bath, Bell, Boyd, Breathitt, Carter, Casey, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Edmonson, Elliott, Estill, Fleming, Garrard, Green, Greenup, Harlan, Hart, Jackson, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Lewis, Lincoln, McCreary, Madison, Menifee, Metcalfe, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Nicholas, Owsley, Perry, [Powell, Pulaski, Robertson, Rockcastle, Rowan, Russell, Wayne, Whitley, and Wolfe.

"The Chefs in Schools program was tremendously successful last year," Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles said. "This program benefits Kentucky students as well as Kentucky farmers and food businesses."

Martin County was one of the school districts that participated in the program.

The Chefs in Schools program will contract with nine chefs, with each being assigned to a region of the state. Participating chefs will instruct personnel in culinary activities to include:

- Estimating food consumption and requisition of food purchases.
- Developing recipes with USDA guidelines in mind to ensure consistent quality and taste.

MLB PLAYOFFS, DODGERS-NATIONALS SERIES TIED 2-2

Chase Utley's single lifts Dodgers over Nats 6-5

BETH HARRIS
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Chase Utley singled home the tie-breaking run with two outs in the eighth inning after the Dodgers' bullpen faltered in relief of Clayton Kershaw, and Los Angeles avoided elimination Tuesday with a 6-5 victory over the Washington Nationals that forced a deciding Game 5 in their NL playoff.

Kenley Jansen worked the ninth for a save, one day after giving up four late runs during Los Angeles' loss in Game 3.

Game 5 is Thursday in Washington, with 20-game winner Max Scherzer set to pitch for the Nationals.

Dodgers manager Dave Roberts said he will use left-hander Rich Hill and rookie Julio Urias, but did not announce which one will start.

After failing to close out the Dodgers on the road, Washington will get one more chance Thursday to win a playoff series for the first time since the franchise relocated from Montreal, NL East champions in three of the past five years, the Nationals were unable to advance during their two previous trips to the postseason.

Adrian Gonzalez hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers, who turned to Kershaw on three days' rest to salvage their season.

The score was tied 5-all with two outs in the eighth when Andrew Toles got hit by a pitch from loser Blake Treinen. Pinch-hitter Andre Ethier followed with a single to left and Utley singled to right, scoring Toles from second for a 6-5 lead.

Trailing 5-2 in the seventh, the Nats had runners on first and second against Kershaw with two outs. The crowd chanted Kershaw's name before Bryce Harper drew an eight-pitch walk to load the bases and chase Kershaw, who walked off with his head down. He sat alone in the dugout with his head resting on his right hand.

That's when the bullpen nearly gave the game away.

Pedro Baez came in and hit Jayson Werth with his only pitch, forcing in a run to make it 5-3. Baez got booed off the field.

Daniel Murphy's single off Luis Avilan dropped between Toles and Joc Pederson in left-center field, scoring two runs to tie it at 5. Avilan also heard boos.

Joe Blanton, who earned the win, retired Anthony Rendon on a swinging strikeout to end the inning.

Desperate to avoid another early playoff exit, the Dodgers turned to Kershaw, their three-time NL Cy Young Award winner who won Game 1 last Friday despite going just five innings and allowing three runs.

This time, he was charged with five runs and seven hits in 6 2/3 innings. He struck out 11 — equaling his second-best postseason total — and walked two.

The left-hander was limited to 149 innings while compiling a 1.69 ERA during the regular season. He missed 2 1/2 months with a mildly herniated disk in his back.

Kershaw opened the game by giving up a leadoff single and a walk before Murphy's RBI single.

The Dodgers took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the inning on Gonzalez's two-run shot that scored Justin Turner, who was hit by a pitch from Joe Ross.

Werth's RBI single tied it 2-all in the third.

Los Angeles again answered in the bottom of the inning, with Kershaw getting the rally going with a double to left field. He slid into second and clenched his fists in a rare show of emotion.

Kershaw scored on Turner's single with two outs. Pederson got hit by a pitch from Ross with the bases loaded, forcing in Turner

Ross made his postseason debut for the Nationals, giving up four runs and three hits in 2 2/3 innings. The 23-year-old right-hander struck out three and walked two. He hasn't pitched more than four innings since coming off the disabled list on Sept. 18.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Nationals RHP Stephen Strasburg experienced discomfort in his right elbow during a bullpen session Monday at Dodger Stadium. He threw 30 or 31 pitches instead of the scheduled 35. Strasburg has been out since tearing the pronator tendon in his elbow on Sept. 7.

Manager Dusty Baker said Strasburg was throwing the ball "very good" and he's not concerned about his progress. Strasburg has said he would try to return this season if the Nationals advance to the NLCS.

SHORT REST

Kershaw started on three days' rest for the fourth consecutive postseason. He previously did so in Game 4s of the Division Series last year against the Mets, in 2014 against the Cardinals and in 2013 against the Braves.

These stories can be fun to read, but they can also make the average Christian wonder if they could ever say the right things, be in the right place, or say, "Hello," without the pastor making a big deal about them being present. Decide that you are going to visit with someone you don't know for the first three minutes after each worship ser-

If you were a part of that, it will be a very special time in your faith journey.

He would want me to remind you...

A Dutch bicycle manufacturer, VanMoof, has come up with an ingenious idea for ensuring that its product is safely transported to its customers. Oddity Central reports:

VanMoof plans to sell 90 percent of its bicycles online by 2020, but after seeing a considerable number of products getting damaged during deliveries and incurring serious losses, the company was left with two options – rethink its business plan or come up with an effective solution. Luckily, they managed to come up with something so brilliant that it's bound to be copied by other companies that rely heavily on online sales. Creative director Bex Rad wrote on the company blog:

Earlier this year our co-founder Ties had a flash of genius. Our boxes are about the same size as a (really really reaaaally massive) flat-screen television. Flat-screen televisions always arrive in perfect condition. What if we just printed a flat-screen television on the side of our boxes? By simply printing a flat-screen TV on the boxes, they reduced the rate of damaged goods by 70 to 80 percent.

When we value what's in the box, we treat the box with greater care. In Genesis 1:27 we read, So God created mankind in his own image, in the image of God he created them; male and female he created them. When we understand that people have been imprinted with the very image of God, we treat people with greater was to continue through June of 2017. Blackburn said SMG understands the economic conditions of Eastern Kentucky and how the industry has changed, and so had a very workable attitude regarding the termination.

The terms of the termination include that the city will pay the remainder of the current contract, which is just under $220,000. However, the city will not have to pay other fees that it would have under the contract, saving the city money.

There are several shows already booked, Blackburn said and SMG for the operation of and maintenance of the Expo.

The city agreed not to enter into an agreement with another management company through term of the contract, which would have ended in June 2017.

"The intent is to retool, refocus, and do things different that will save the taxpayers a tremendous amount of money, while still focusing on things like conferences and expanding it under our control," Blackburn said.

The employees of SMG, as of Dec. 31, will no longer be employed at the Expo Center. They will have opportunities choose.

"There will be opportunity for those who put forth the effort, and show that they are qualified and the right person for that position," he said.

Blackburn said the action is a positive one for Pikeville.

"It is certainly a good move for the city," he said. "All our major partners that use the arena understand the importance of what we're doing and why we're doing it. We will continue our partnership with many business leaders in the community who con-

"Sometimes we do have to shut off water at night, when there is low usage, to build up water levels in the tanks. But we're trying to juggle the system around. Everyone has water most of the time, rather than some people not having water for an extended period of time while other people always have it. We think this is the fairest way to handle it."

The water district soon could face another challenge.

Ball has been talking to Mary Varson Cromer, a staff attorney at the Appalachian Citizens' Law Center in Whitesburg. Cromer mentioned to him the town of Hannibal, Mo., where residents filed a class-action lawsuit in March against their municipal water provider and the state regulatory history in Martin County.

At some point, violating these orders from the state has to actually bring real penalties or else it doesn't mean anything. It's a basic human rights issue. We all have the right to clean drinking water."

speaker Jason Koger of Owensboro will be speaking to all middle schoolers about various safety issues and safe choices. On March 1, 2008 a normal spring-time ride almost turned into a tragedy when Jason struck a fallen, live power line, suffering near-fatal injuries in the process. To save Jason's life, doctors had to amputate both of his arms below the elbow. Since then Jason has taken on the mission of sharing his story in the hope that he can be a source of encouragement to others. <http://www.jasonkoger.com/> and contingency plans, we currently do not anticipate shortages of Jim Beam or any other products made at these facilities," David Hunter, chief supply chain officer for Beam Suntory, said in a statement Friday night.

The company said it hoped union workers would reconsider the contract offer, which included pay increases. It said the revised offer dealt with workers' concerns on such issues as overtime and temporary workers. It did not immediately comment Saturday as the strike began.

The vote Friday marked the second time in days that union workers overwhelmingly rejected the company's offer.

The classic American whiskey brand is owned by Suntory Holdings Ltd., a Japanese beverage company.

Ball sounded skeptical of those contingency plans, predicting efficiency will suffer without union workers so it's done right," he said.

Bourbon ages for years before reaching maturity. Where the walkout could have an impact on short-term supply is in such jobs as removing mature whiskey from barrels stored in warehouses, known in the trade as rickhouses, and bottling the spirits.

"You can't just get Johnny off the street to come in to do this," Minnick said in a phone interview. "If you don't know how to roll a barrel in a rickhouse, you're going to lose a thumb."

Striking workers talked about a family atmosphere on the job that has grown strained in recent times.

Jerry Smith, a 21-year Beam employee who does maintenance work on the bottling line, said he typically works about 70 hours per week. His workload means he's missed out on plenty of events with his two teenage children, he said.

"Pretty much, my kids in the last five years have grown up without their how that could happen.

Clark County Attorney Brian Thomas said wearing hats, shirts and buttons falls under the electioneering statute, which prohibits any campaigning within 100 feet of a polling place. Until 2014, the law was 300 feet, he said.

Since absentee voting opened Tuesday at the courthouse, Thomas said Irwin, who was wearing a Trump hat at the fiscal court meeting, was technically in violation of the statute.

"They can prohibit the hats," Thomas said. "They can be asked to leave and they can be fined."

A bumper sticker on a passing vehicle could be an exception, he said.

Clark County Clerk Michelle Turner said

none of her precinct workers noted an incident like what Erwin described, and Wednesday's meeting was the first she'd heard about any incidents.

"There's no politicking within the courthouse," she said.

With the election nearing, preparations for other facets are under way as well.

Turner said the Sphar and Van Meter precincts have been moved to Baker Intermediate school instead of the Elks Lodge. Turner said an audit last year found there were accessibility issues with several precincts, but the Elks could not be remedied.

Another situation at the county fire station in Trapp has been fixed, she said, and voting will occur as normal.

No other precincts have been moved, she said.
