MLSPA calls FC 'deplorable'

Charlie Hatch
Cincinnati Enquirer
USA TODAY NETWORK

The Major League Soccer Players Association called Futbol Club Cincinnati's behavior of Tommy Heinemann's release "deplorable and well below the standards necessary to succeed in MLS" in a press release on Tuesday afternoon.

Heinemann was signed by FC Cincinnati on Dec. 5, but was released Jan. 31 after the club said he failed his medical examination.

The MLSPA is the exclusive collective-bargaining representative for all current MLS players. Heinemann, who has MLS experience, is a former member of the organization.

According to the association's release, FC Cincinnati breached a valid contract. The USL later ruled in the player's favor, but the club refused to "perform its obligations under the contract."

The MLSPA wrote FC Cincinnati didn't conduct an entry medical exam with Heinemann, signing the forward who played for the San Francisco Deltras in 2017. The player disclosed previous injury history and access to medical records.

After the club and player signed the contract, the MLSPA said FC Cincinnati asked Heinemann to accept a pay cut because of a previous knee injury. He refused and was released. According to the MLSPA, Heinemann has a "significantly lower salary than what he's owed by FC Cincinnati."
