10 Q. Did you file direct testimony in this proceeding on January 26, 2018?

11 A. I did not, however, I adopted the direct testimony that was filed by Compa-
12 ny witness Megan Garber in this proceeding on January 26, 2018.

13 Q. Please summarize the direct testimony filed on January 26, 2018.

14 A. The direct testimony addressed the impact of the reduced federal corporate 15 income tax pursuant to the Tax Cuts and Job Act of 2017 ("TCJA") on cur-16 rent income as well as the impact on accumulated deferred income taxes.

17 Q: What is the purpose of your testimony in this proceeding?

18 A: The purpose of my testimony in this proceeding is to support the calculation
19 and the level of excess deferred income taxes to be returned to customers

1 pursuant to the Commission's Order dated December 27, 2017 in this pro-2 ceeding.

3 Q: Please explain how the Company is handling the excess deferred income
4 taxes to be returned to customers?

5 A: On December 22, 2017, President Trump signed into law major tax reform
6 known as the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 which reduced the federal in-7 come tax rate effective January 1, 2018. In January 2018, the Company re-
8 measured all deferred taxes as of December 31, 2017, and recorded a regula-9 tory liability for the amount to be returned to customers. At the onset of 10 Case No. 2018-00041, the Company stated that it was unable to calculate the 11 amount of excess deferred income taxes ("EDIT") as of December 31, 2017
12 with certainty due to the fact that the 2017 federal return will not be filed un-13 til October 15, 2018 and until such time return positions taken have not been 14 approved by the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") (see 2018-00041 Staff DR 15 1-8). The determination of whether the Company was eligible to deduct 16 100% bonus depreciation for assets placed in service from September 27,
17 2017 to December 31, 2017 was one such return position that had the poten-
18 tial of resulting in a material change to the amount of EDIT at December 31,
19 2017. During the initial discovery phase of the current case, the Company
20 filed an Issue Resolution Agreement ("IRA") request with the IRS in order to 1 determine with greater certainty the availability of 100% bonus depreciation.

2 Subsequent to filing the IRA but prior to receiving a determination from the 3 IRS on the IRA, the IRS on August 3, 2018 issued proposed regulations
4 (REG-104397-18) which affirms the availability of 100% bonus depreciation
5 in addition to clarifying the rules for property eligible for 100% bonus de-
6 preciation. In short, the proposed regulations affirm the return position tak-
7 en by the Company upon which the EDIT as of December 31, 2017 was 8 based. This means that even though the Company has yet to file its federal 9 return, it now believes that the amount of EDIT as calculated as of December 10 31, 2017 should not change materially.

11 Q: Please explain the Company's calculation of EDIT

12 A: Since Companies are allowed to treat income and expense differently on 13 their tax returns filed with the IRS than what is recorded on their books, this 14 results in deferred tax assets and liabilities. When a tax rate decrease occurs, 15 the deferred taxes must be re-measured to the new rate in effect, which cre-16 ates excess deferred taxes in the case of a deferred tax liability (i.e. represent-17 ing amounts to be returned to customers) and deficient deferred taxes in the 18 case of deferred tax assets (i.e. representing amounts to be collected from 19 customers). The Company re-measured the EDIT as of December 31, 2017, 20 by multiplying the balance of all book versus tax timing differences which

1 gave rise to accumulated deferred income taxes by the new 21% federal in-
 2 come tax rate (see Column 2 in Exhibit PF-1). This amount was subtracted 3 from the balances of all book versus tax timing differences multiplied by the 4 previous federal income tax rate in Column 1 in Exhibit PF-1. The difference
 5 resulted in net EDIT as shown in Column 3 in Exhibit PF-1.

6 Q. What is the Company’s proposal to reverse the excess deferred taxes?

7 A. For book purposes, the Company began amortizing the excess deferred tax-
 8 es in January 2018. The Company proposes to include amortization of all ex-
 9 cess deferred taxes related to the TCJA, including the excess deferred taxes
 10 amortized beginning January 2018, in rates for the benefit of customers
 11 through a Tax Act Adjustment Factor as described in the Supplemental Tes-
 12 timony of Company witness Lai. The amount of excess and deficient ADIT
 13 along with the proposed amortization periods are summarized in the table
 14 below:

Description	Amount of Excess or (Deficient) ADIT	Proposed Amortization
Property	30,098,662	ARAM life of assets
NOL	(1,026,003)	39 YR Straight Line
Non-Property related	(1,507,690)	10 YR Straight Line

 16 For all property-related excess deferred taxes the Company is using what is 17 referred to as the average rate assumption method (“ARAM”) to calculate

1 the annual amortization of excess deferred taxes to be refunded to custom-
2 ers. ARAM reduces the excess deferred tax reserve over the remaining regu-
3 latory life of the property during the years in which the related deferred tax
4 reserve is reversing. This method requires the Company to keep deferred
5 taxes intact until book depreciation exceeds tax depreciation for each indi-
6 vidual asset, and is required to be used if the Company has the books and 7 records to support this method, which the Company does. This results in a 8 reduction to tax expense in the amount of $793,937. This amount does not 9 include the refund of excess deferred taxes from federal income tax rate re-
10 ductions prior to the TCJA of approximately $54,000 which is being refund-
11 ed in base rates pursuant to Case No. 2016-00162.

12 All remaining deferred taxes are a net deficiency as a result of the tax rate
13 decrease. For the federal NOL as shown on Exhibit PF-1, Line 5, the Compa-
14 ny is seeking an amortization period of 39 years based on the average re-15 maining life of book assets using a composite book depreciation rate of 16 2.54% as included in the last base rate case (Case No. 2016-00162). The Com-
17 pany projects to record higher tax expense in the amount of $26,308. For the 18 non-property related deferred taxes as shown in Exhibit PF-1, Line 4, that 19 were included in the determination of rates in the last case, the Company 20 projects to record higher tax expense in the amount of $150,769 using a ten-

1 year amortization period which aligns with the expected turnaround of the 2 shorter term underlying assets. The net annual amortization in the amount 3 of $616,860 ($$616,860 = $793,937 - $26,308 - $150,769$) is then multiplied by the 4 gross conversion factor as shown on Exhibit PF-1, Line 8 to determine the 5 revenue decrease on Line 9. This amount is then adjusted for the revenue
6 impact of the increase in rate base that results when the EDIT is amortized.
7 This occurs because at the same time the EDIT are amortized there is a rate 8 base increase due to the change in the resulting balance of accumulated de-
9 ferred income taxes in the amount of $616,860. The rate base increase is mul-
10 tiplied by the weighted cost of capital of 7.3526% resulting in a net revenue 11 increase in the amount of $45,355 as shown on Exhibit PF-1, Line 11 and the 12 net resulting revenue decrease to be returned to customers is $794,674 as 13 shown on Line 12. Please refer to the testimony of Company witness Lai for 14 a discussion of how the amount will be refunded to customers.

15 Q: Does this complete your Prepared Supplemental testimony?

16 A: Yes, however, I reserve the right to file rebuttal testimony if necessary.
