State police: Mount Vernon woman who shot husband arrested

Houston Harwood Evansville Courier & Press

USA TODAY NETWORK

EVANSVILLE — Indiana State Police detectives arrested a Mount Vernon woman Monday they say shot her husband during a domestic dispute on Fridav.

Melissa Wade, 48, faces charges of attempted murder, a Level 1 felony, aggravated battery, a Level 3 felony, and battery with a deadly weapon, a Level 5 felony.

In a news release, state police officials said Mount Vernon police were dispatched to a home at 160 Indiana 62 West at approximately 8:42 p.m. and found 58-year-old Herbert Wade on the living room floor with a gunshot wound to the chest.

Police believe Melissa Wade shot her husband with a handgun during an argument. Melissa Wade also accidentally shot herself in the leg, according to officers.

A juvenile relative was inside the home during the shooting, but they were not injured, police said.

State police labeled Herbert Wade's injuries as "life-threatening" and Melissa Wade's wound as "non-lifethreatening." Both were taken to Deaconess Midtown Hospital in Evansville for treatment.

Melissa Wade was arrested following her release from the hospital, according to ISP spokesman Sgt. Todd Ringle. He said she is currently being held without bond at the Posey County jail.

Herbert Wade is still being treated for his injuries, police said.

Late complication thwarts mom's transplant for son

John Tuohy Indianapolis Star

USA TODAY NETWORK

Bags were packed, hotel rooms booked and hopes high. After months of testing and waiting, Jackson Sutton would be heading to Cincinnati to receive a kidney transplant from his mother.

The operation would end more than two years of keeping Jax alive and active with daily at-home dialysis treatments. Katie and Matt Sutton had been marking days off the calendar -30, 20, 10 - until everyone could regain a semblance of normal life. A stroke of good fortune had brought them there; Katie's matching kidney would save the family years on a list for deceased donors.

Five days before the Aug. 16 scheduled surgery, Katie took a phone call from Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center.

There was a problem.

Jax had developed a blood antibody that would reject Katie's kidney. The transplant was cancelled.

"I was devastated, it was such a shock," Katie said. "When I got off the phone and Matt looked at my face he thought a parent had died."

At first, disbelief and confusion swept the household.

Jax's older sister Regan, 8, thought it meant that her brother could never get a transplant. That wasn't true, Katie explained to her, but it did mean she could never donate to Jax. Inevitably, doctors says, Jax will need another transplant down the line.

There were immediate considerations, as well. The family had to quickly call Katie's father and stepmother, who planned to drive up from Florida the next day. Other friends had plans to visit the hospital. And the Suttons suddenly second- guessed planning a celebratory vacation in March, their first trip since Jax was born, Jan. 30, 2020.

"We had gotten so close and were upset for quite some time," Katie Sutton said. "Then after a week we kind of joked, like "C'mon Universe, what else are you going to do to us?"

IndyStar reported on Jax's ordeal in February. The boy was born with End Stage Renal Disease, an enlargement of the bladder, kidneys and ureters caused by a urinary tract obstruction. In June 2020, the Suttons were told Jax would need daily dialysis — but it could be administered by them at their 317-444-6418. Email at john.tuohy@in-Noblesville home. The parents received a week of training at Peyton @john_tuohy.

Jax Sutton of Noblesville has End Stage Renal Disease and needs a kidney transplant. PROVIDED BY KATIE SUTTON

Manning Children's Hospital and a truckload of hospital supplies at their home afterward.

Each morning and night since, they have administered the dialysis to Jax, run him to doctor's appointments and therapy sessions, and raised two young girls who are sometimes both confused and amused by the attention Jax requires.

The transplant setback means the routine will continue a while longer, Katie said. In the meantime, the Suttons have gotten back to work on a twopronged plan to get Jax his kidney.

For the last couple of weeks, Matt Sutton has been undergoing tests to see if his kidney is a match for Jax and Katie is entering hers into a kidney paired exchange program.

It took Katie a month to complete her tests in April and May and another three months until she and Jax could be scheduled for surgery. She said Matt's testing seems to be going faster and a scheduling decision could be made in October.

In the exchange program, donors who are not compatible with their intended recipient agree to donate their organ to a pool of donors who are the same situation, increasing the odds that living matches are found.

Katie said the program gives her some solace that she will be able to help a stranger, even if she can't help Jax.

"It makes me feel better that someone else will benefit," she said. Call IndyStar reporter John Tuohy at brewery is, they say 'thank you for doing this," Don said.

Fort Branch and Haubstadt are tiny towns just north of Interstate 64, but there's quite a nice dining scene in the area. Between the Log Inn, R'z, The Haub Haus, and various diners, cafes, pizza spots, taverns, ice cream shops and Dewig Meats, there's always a reason to head north to enjoy some food and now there's a place to go for drinks, as well.

Don owns Angermeier Electric and already owned the building where the brewery is located. He'd been wondering what to do with it.

This part of it was just collecting junk," he said. "I brewed beer at home for four or five years and this sounded more fun than anything else. My wife was a schoolteacher for 42 years and retired this year, so she loves visiting and knows everyone."

Angermeier made sure he could get all his permits and then started to work on the building.

It took about a year and a half to remodel the storage area into a sleek, modern space with a family room, glassed-in brewing area, separate bar room and bright, pretty patio.

"We jumped in and we're learning," Don said. "In the beginning we struggled a little to keep up with inventory. Eventually I want to add more fermenters and cooler space."

Beer offerings range from the pale and mild to the dark and strong.

Drinkers who prefer lighter brews with less hops bitterness will enjoy the wheat beer with lemon and cherry wheat. The Red Robin Irish Ale, a favorite of Robin Angermeier, is a slightly darker brew with lots of malt and not too much bitterness.

A pale ale and the Billy Bock amber ale are a little more assertive, and then and more. Eat and play in the nice air come an IPA with big hops character and the porter, which contains molasses and is dark yet easy to drink.

"The Red Robin is the biggest seller," Don said. "It's not very hoppy. The porter is smooth. Some people are scared of dark beers but the ones that try it like it."

A blackberry wheat beer made with juice from the Angermeiers' own blackberry bushes is next up on the menu.

"We've raised blackberries for 20 years and we get more than what we can use," Don said. "We research recipes and play around with recipes ... We might pour it out but it should be ready within a month. We hope to eventually get into doing new seasonals every couple months."

The brewery doesn't have a kitchen, but charcuterie boards featuring meats and cheeses from Dewig Meats with fruit and nuts are put together fresh to order.

Within two blocks of Kant are Zack's Diner, Harper's Pub and Pizza, LeeAndrea's Sweet Treats Café and Bakery, The Iron Horse Bar and Grill, R'z Café and Catering, Flora June's Scoop Shoppe and any food trucks visiting Flora June's on the weekend, so it's possible to grab yourself anything from a tavern burger to a plate of cookies, an ice cream cone or ribeye steak topped with a crab cake to take in and enjoy with the brew of your choice.

It's a good place to take kids, too. Grab that pizza and ice cream and find Kant's magic bookshelf stacked with cards, board games, crayons, Jenga conditioning while enjoying a cold brew for yourself.

Firearms

inside a stolen vehicle in Chicago, she said. But guns stolen in Evansville more frequently turn up within the city or in nearby Henderson, Kentucky.

Guns in America are a hot-button issue, but advocates say reducing the number of stolen firearms is a problem people on both sides of the gun debate can work to address.

Cars, homes are prime targets

On one day in June, three people called police to report their handguns had gone missing.

According to EPD incident reports, a woman called police at 8:33 a.m. on June 20 to report her 9mm Canik T9 handgun had been stolen from her home while she was on vacation. Three-and-a-half hours later, another woman reported her 9mm Ruger pistol was missing from her vehicle, and one-and-a-half hours after that, yet another caller reported she'd had a 9mm Ruger stolen from a car.

These incidents are far from rare, according to Gray, who has worked many stolen firearm cases over the vears.

She said the EPD routinely investigates firearm thefts from cars and homes and, on average, reports of these thefts total about 100 per year in Evansville.

"Sometimes people are a little embarrassed, because they don't want to call and report it," Gray said. "But we always tell people, you know, things happen — please report it, because otherwise we're not going to know."

Gray said the thieves, often teenagers, know it's risky to hold onto a stolen gun, and that's why the firearms are frequently sold on the street and can end up being recovered hundreds of miles away from the city.

"By the time we recover a gun, it has probably changed hands multiple times," Gray said. "It's kind of just one of those crime of opportunities, because we may have had like 10 other thefts of vehicles that night, and maybe only one or two had guns stolen."

Keeping firearms safe from thieves

The EPD advises local gun owners to keep firearms in their car only when they have to, such as when visiting a building that prohibits firearms. If you do have to keep a gun in your vehicle, Gray said it's vitally important to make sure it's out of sight and, ideally, locked away.

The National Shooting Sports Foundation (NSSF) says gun owners should have control of their firearm at all times, and when one can't directly oversee the gun, it should be "placed in locked storage and out of sight." The foundation advises owners to never leave a gun in a car where a child or pet could accidentally discharge the weapon. In a gun safety guide published by the NSSF, the foundation said storage devices designed for keeping guns safe inside a vehicle should be used whenever possible.

Saving the serial number and providing it to police in the event a gun is stolen also helps police track stolen firearms that are used in the commission of a crime.

"A lockable gun case or a lock box may be the most practical choice to securely store a gun in a vehicle," the Firearms Safety in Vehicles guide states. "These come in a range of prices and models."

EPD agrees, but Gray advises gun owners to only keep firearms inside their car unattended if other alternatives aren't available.

"If for whatever reason you have to leave your firearm in there, always keep in mind when you're leaving it in there," Gray said. "And make sure it's locked."

No, you won't be charged for reporting your gun stolen

One common misconception is that a firearm owner can get in trouble if their gun is stolen. Gray said this attitude is incorrect and causes some people to be hesitant about reporting a theft. In most cases, the EPD actually tries to return a stolen firearm to its rightful owner.

When police find a stolen gun, the first step is to run the serial number through a police database, Gray said. If the owner supplied the gun's serial number when the theft was reported, the EPD can use it to try to return the firearm.

Saving the serial number and providing it to police in the event a gun is stolen also helps police track stolen firearms that are used in the commission of a crime.

"The biggest thing is a lot of people lose track of their serial numbers," Gray said. "I always say, write down your serial number. And if you can attach a picture of your handgun or anything about your handgun, write it down and keep it in a safe place. So if your gun is ever stolen, you can show it to the officer."

Multiple studies have found that firearm thefts from vehicles have increased over the past two decades as more people purchase guns and keep them inside cars. Gray said Evansville gun owners should think twice about plastering gun-related bumper stickers all over a vehicle if one plans to keep a firearm inside.

"If you travel or you're going to leave your firearm in your car, don't sticker it up and advertise that you have a weapon in there " she said

During a field goal try by the Trojans — a successful 31-yard conversion by Maddox Catlin — Crittenden was called for roughing the kicker. The penalty moved the ball to the six yard line and gave WCHS new life. Aden Young took advantage and bulled his way through the Rockets' defense for a touchdown.

The lead didn't last long,

Once, kids played like their lives depended on it. If only kids still did.

Chunky. Hefty. Big-boned. For parents of overweight children, it's all too easy to minimize reality. But the consequences of a heavy childhood may actually result in a generation of children with shorter life spans than their parents.

Encourage physical activity and better nutrition. Do whatever it takes to get your kids as active as kids once were. Activity and weight-bearing exercise will help your child live stronger, and live longer. For more advice and information, visit orthoinfo.org, aap.org/obesity and posna.org.

Award-Winning Challenge Returning

To Promote Organ Donation In State

After a slight hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Kentucky's Circuit Clerks are excited to announce that sign-ups are open for the 2022 High School Challenge sponsored by Donate Life Kentucky. The theme of the challenge this year is Be a Hero.

The Donate Life Kentucky High School Challenge is a three-week competition to see which High School Club or group can add the most new names to the organ donor registry or complete the most activities to educate about the important mission of organ, tissue and eye donation. The Donate Life Kentucky High School Challenge has received national awards from Donate Life America for its creativity and success in inspiring registrations.

Any Kentucky club or group of students with a teacher/adult sponsor is welcome to sign up for this community service project at https://bit.ly/hsheroes22. Sign-ups are due Sept. 30, 2022.

"With over 100,000

Americans in need of lifesaving organ transplants, it is vital that Kentuckians register as organ donors," says Webster County Circuit Clerk, Janet Cole. "Each group of students that signs up for this challenge is already a hero."

The winning schools will be determined by reaching a target level in a point system based on outreach activities and another will be determined by the most new signups on RegisterMe. org. Activities include donor registry drives, making commercials, art, school wide assemblies and social media outreach. Prizes in the amount of $1,000 will be awarded to the top of these categories.

"High school students can make an incredible impact on this lifesaving mission by educating their peers about the need for more registered donors," explains Shelley Snyder, Executive Director of the Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life. The Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life partners with Kentucky Organ Donor Affiliates to put on this Challenge and other public education programs across the Commonwealth.

"Right now, 887 teenagers are waiting for a lifesaving transplant. Organ donation and transplantation is an issue that can impact anyone at any time. Every registered donor gives hope," said Cole.

For more information on the High School Challenge, contact info@trustforlife. org or call 866-945-5433.

NewFAFSA Filing Season Begins October 1

High school seniors and postsecondary students needing student financial aid for fall 2023 can file the 2023–24 Free Application for Federal Student Aid, or FAFSA, beginning Ocober. 1, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

"In the first five months of 2022, the Beshear-Coleman administration helped bring more than $3.9 billion in new investment and more than 6,700 jobs for Kentuckians," said Lt. Gov. Jacqueline Coleman. "To take full advantage of those opportunities and to fill those, we need more students to get the post-high school education they need, whether that means technical training or traditional college degrees."

Even students who don't think they will qualify for financial aid should submit the FAFSA. Rules governing student aid programs sometimes change, and students who don't file the FAFSA may miss out on free money that could help pay for their education.

The parents or guardians of students considered dependents under federal guidelines must also provide financial information on the FAFSA. This affects most students going directly to college from high school, who are typically considered a dependent.

The FAFSA asks for information about income, assets and expenses. The data provided on the FAFSA determines whether students qualify for federal grants, work-study and loans, as well as several state grants and scholarships. Many colleges also use the FAFSA to award their own grants and scholarships.

Some student aid programs have limited funds and provide awards on a first-come, first-served basis, so students and families should submit the FAFSA as soon as possible.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES), need-based grants and other programs to help students pay their higher education expenses. Kentucky Lottery funds pay for many of those programs. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit kheaa.com; write KHEAA at P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926. In addition, KHEAA administers the KY Saves 529 program, which allows families to save for college. For more information about KY Saves 529, visit kysaves.com.

KHEAA also disburses private Advantage Education Loans for its sister agency, KHESLC. For more information about Advantage Education Loans, visit advantageeducationloan.com.
