GENERAL REPAIRS

Monday, March 9, 2020 4:07 PM - Machine had a hydraulic steering line leaking that ran from the control valve for the backhoe up to the steering valve in between the hydraulic tank and windshield, there was 2 hoses that run together for the steering i changed them both because they had been rubbing together and caused the smaller one to blow so i changed them both the other one was in bad shape and could blow any time, had to remove the shielding around the hydraulic tank and all the p clamps that the hoses ran thru and had to remove some other hoses to get the bad ones out due to them being so long and running from the front of the machine to the back, replaced the hoses and put everything back together and checked for leaks and didnt see any more leaks, checked the hydraulic oil level and added some to it and machine is complete.
