Vendors to fill Bardstown with arts, crafts this weekend

BY KATELYN NORRIS PAXTON MEDIA GROUP

For more than four decades, 200-plus vendors have flocked to the heart of downtown Bardstown for the annual Arts and Crafts Festival.

On Saturday, the 42nd annual Bardstown Arts and Craft Festival is back as nearly 250 vendors showcase their handmade goods.

Bardstown Main Street Executive Director Randi Mouser said they continue to hold themselves to high standards for one of the largest arts and craft festivals in the state and they take pride in bringing the best festival they can to all who visit.

Starting their application process in March, a committee narrowed down the more than 500 applicants down to the 250 accepted for the weekend. Mouser said they would love to expand the number of vendors at the festival and the amount of space they occupy, but it is something they currently were unable to do.

"We can't expand it too much more, but we are adding a few pieces," she said. "Where our kids zone is, with all the bouncy houses, they are actually going to be extending that and The festival begins from putting some additional ones in Mouser said vendors from across the state and region are setting up this year at the festival, with some as far away as Ohio, Indiana, Tennessee and Michigan. Mouser said they take special care to ensure they've selected a wide swath of vendors with a unique selection of products.

My grandmother's mums are at least 40 years old. The heirloom mums bloom in the autumn (November) as a perennial. They grow in full sun with welldrained soil. Irrigation will need to be increased during dry periods.

Heirloom mums do well with water soluble fertilizer applied throughout the summer. Mulch around the plant will help suppress weeds and retain moisture.

Plant these mums in the early spring. Do not plant them in the autumn. The roots will not develop enough in

You do not have to cut them back during the growing season unless you want to reduce the height of the plant. These mums can reach 24 to 36 inches in height. I pruned them this year in June and it seems more flower buds formed as a result.

Plant these mums in the back of the perennial bed allowing shorter plants to be planted in the front. The old stems from the previous year will die.

I trim these off three to four inches from the soil level to allow for the new year's growth to emerge. These heirloom mums will spread over time. So, you will easily be able to share with friends.

teen driving and outlines six basic rules for the road:

1. Avoid Distracted Driving. According to NHTSA, driver distraction is the leading factor in most crashes. Avoid distractions, like talking or texting on cell phones, talking to passengers, adjusting audio and climate controls in the vehicle and eating or drinking while driving. Additionally, headphones are not safe to wear while driving, as they can distract a driver from hearing sirens, horns or other important sounds.

2. Wear Seat Belts. Wearing a seat belt is the best protection against injury and death, yet according to NHTSA, teens are less likely to be buckled up than members of any other age group. Properly fastened seat belts contact the strongest parts of the body, such as the chest, hips and shoulders. A seat belt spreads the force of a crash over a wide area of the body, putting less stress on any one part, and allows the body to slow down with the impact, extending the time when the occupant feels the crash forces.

3. Take Extra Caution While Driving with Passengers. Passengers in a teen's car can lead to tragedy. NHTSA research shows that the risk of a fatal crash goes up dramatically in direct relation to the number of passengers in a car. The likelihood of teen drivers engaging in risky behavior triples when traveling with multiple passengers.

4. Obey Speed Limits. Limits are put in place to protect all road users. Driving over the speed limit greatly reduces a driver's ability to steer safely around another vehicle,
