Rate increase should be spread out between both residential and business customers. A flat rate delivery charge is unfair. It should continue to be based on usage. It would make it extremely difficult for seniors, especially those that are single and on a fixed income. We already have seniors who roast in summer because they are afraid to run their air and who freeze in winter for fear of turning up the heat. Those who have spent to insulate homes and strive to conserve energy should be able to reap the reward of those efforts.
