with the economy the way it is right now the rate increase LGE is asking is ridiculous! people are struggling right now just to survive,including myself.when times are tough we all have to suck it up and cut corners and save where we can,why should LGE be any different?they could cut hours or stagger days off,they could buy cheaper office supplies,reroute their trucks where they don't run from one part of the city to the other.also as the saying goes LGE should have saved for a rainy day.it must be nice anytime you need money let the customer pay more! there should have been money and plans already put aside for the unexpected.my gutters and shed was destroyed by the storm,whos going to pay my $1000 deductible?maybe i can pass that along to LGE.so now they want us to pay for the hurricane damage then the ice storm damage,where does it end? on top of that our water co. is wanting an increase,our insurance rates are going up..... this has to stop somewhere! if you don't think this increase is going to be a huge burden on thousands of families then you have lost all contact with the average family. thanks,Wayne Acree
