As I stated at the meeting, concern for me is how someone who owns and operates wastewater package plants can receive fees for service / billing payments for 18 years, that comes to about half a million dollars and not upgrade / update to the point of dilapidation. Only then to file abandonment and walk away with no consequences. <http://echo.epa.gov/detailed-f...> Violation after Violation. Which raises a follow up question, Mr. Melnykovych replied my question with "If they are meeting safety requirements and providing adequate service, the PSC does not take action". Do the terms, safety requirements and adequate service need more clarification? According to the above link for the EPA, Mr. Lewis has been in violation quite a bit, so I wonder why the PSC was not involved sooner, I still await and am eager to hear what the Division of Water has to say on this matter.

Thank you again,
