To whom it may concern,

The climate is in crisis, as you well know.

Solar energy, and other renewable energy, is all the U.S.A will one day have. It is totally irresponsible for our legislature to alter the net-metering arrangement currently in place and attempt to impair the growth of solar power generation by letting a large corporation collect money for something it did not create or provide to customers.

To me this is a further sign of handing the gains of citizens efforts over for the benefit of large monopolies.

If we intend to have something close to a livable world for future generations (see front of card) we must continue to provide "choice" - like solar power generation.

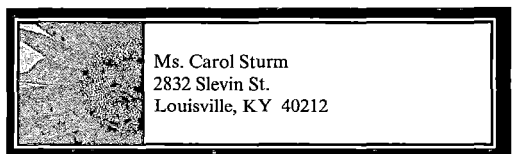

Do no aid and abet more corporate hegemony when we do have alternatives. Keep net metering in place.

Sincerely,
Carol Sturm
