Being born and raised in Ashland, Ky, I remember people bragging about the low electric rates we had. When I was living in Ohio in 2010 I was teasing my dad about how bad the electric rates in Kentucky had gotten. I was paying half what he was paying.

In 2018, I moved to Hazard from South Carolina and was shocked at the insurance and electric rates in Hazard, KY. My auto insurance went up 150%. My electric rate was a surprise too. And now with the pandemic resurging, my electric rate has been raised 12.5%. How do people on a fixed income make it?

I will be retiring soon and am worried about what seems to be rubber stamping whatever the utility companies want. Utility rates should be looked at from 1990 till now and see how much they have risen compared to the cost of living.

Please help us.

Last year we put solar panels on our home on Herrington Lake in Danville, KY. We firmly believe in the need for alternate energy sources and made this investment in our home with the growing climate crisis in mind. As a public service agency, the PSC should be doing everything in its power to support solar and other alternative energy sources and NOT making it more difficult to justify the expense of installing solar panels. Leave the existing net metering system in place. Do not reward KU for polluting our environment, including the lake I live on, but rather, encourage KU to expand its support of solar power, instead of trying to undermine it. Thank you.
