State the nature of your concern: Dear Officials, Farmland Lost is Farmland Lost Forever. Farmland must be preserved for food production. Merchant-level industrial solar power plants do not belong on farmland. The removal of topsoil, placement of panels in concrete pylons, thousands and thousands of feet of cables underground, and leaking of chemicals such as cadmium from solar panels will deem our precious land unreclaimable after the 30 to 50-year "project". We can't allow solar companies to grab up our land by the thousands of acres. This is not only a land grab, but also a money grab by big corporations so they can get millions of dollars in subsidies. Allowing these industrial facilities on farmland will NOT benefit the majority of Mason Countians or Kentuckians. Corporations are trying to come into any area where the zoning or lack thereof will allow them. Please think of your younger family members and future generations when you are making decisions about corporations grabbing up and destroying ultimately what will be hundreds of thousands of acres of our precious Kentucky farmland. Respectfully, Julie Burton Board of Directors Citizens Voice of Mason County, Incorporated

State the nature of your concern: This is not really something I prefer to look at every morning when I get out of bed! I am able to see a long ways from the second floor of my recently purchased home, blue sky's, cattle, wildlife and plenty of green acres. I don't feel that seeing a solar farm would be in my best interest, if I knew of this prior to buying this home I would have passed. Dp& L just closed across the river they have all kinds of acres and would be easy to install lines to the grid. Why if this is so good for the economy has this not been put into action? I do not need or want solar in my back door. Maybe try the desert no one living there! Have you contacted the utility about the problem: No
