I was shocked to read that JPEC has requested from the Ky PSC a residential rate increase of 15.2%. No explanation was given for this massive increase. In the same proposal the increase for large commercial existing customers was only 1.4%. So it sure appears that JPEC is attempting to raise more revenue on the backs of individuals including senior homeowners like me.

I ask the PSC pare back this huge increase or at a minimum make it more equitable.

Otherwise I will be looking at solar options. Maybe that is the game plan but I doubt it.

I do not understand why JPEC wants to raise residential rates by 15.2% while raising commercial and industrial rates by 0.4%. That $20.00 plus a month for residents on a fixed income is a large and probably catastrophic amount of increase. That could mean the difference in buying food and needed medications for these people. Why, if this cooperative is owned by its customers, does JPEC need an additional $7,301,495? I am sure that they do not need that money as much as people on a fixed income need this money. I understand that they probably need a small increase, but what they are asking for is ridiculous and unjustified. Shame on JPEC for requesting such a large increase for residential customers and shame on you if you allow it to happen.
