This is in reference to case number 2021-00398, cell phone tower installation approval.

My family and I are in support of installing a new communication cell tower in the area around Rough River.

When I first visited them when they moved to Rough River I was alone and lost cell phone signal for over 30 minutes, which was very frustrating. This is something I hope to prevent for another person.

I believe that the tower will help both residents be able to communicate, as well as benefit the tourism to the area.

Thank You,

Kayla Hadfield

Hello my name is Judy Newton. I'm leaving a message in regards to the Falling Branch Cell Tower (case#2012-00398). I am very much in favor for the cell tower because I have numerous family members in the area. Most of the time I can not get in touch with them because of the lack of cell service. One of which, one of them is my niece that has been diagnosed with terminal cancer. I try to check on her from time to time and can never get a hold of her to check in on in updates. I am very much in favor of the cell tower and really hope that it will move forward.

To whom it may concern,

As a licensed Real Estate broker who has been part of 1000's of transactions and represented both buyer and seller clients in Ohio, I request that you consider alternate locations for the proposed tower at 2589 Blue Bird Rd, Falls of Rough Kentucky 40119. If an alternate location cannot be agreed upon, please deny the tower application from NEw Cingular Wireless/ATT and Tilman Infrastructure.

The neighbors, the Nicolai family, will incur substantial economic loss if this tower is approved. Potential homeowners view cell towers as a negative and many will not purchase a property with a cell tower in view. Nearby cell towers decrease the value of property and decrease the demand for that property.

The National Institute for Science, Law, and Public Policy ran a survey "'Neighborhood Cell Towers & Antennas—Do They Impact a Property's Desirability?" initiated June 2, 2014, with 1000 respondents. Of those respondents, "94% said a nearby cell tower or group of antennas would negatively impact interest in a property or the price they would be willing to pay for it."

I have attached the survey for you here.

Anecdotally, I have sold properties that have taken substantial losses on them, compared to neighboring properties, due to their proximity to cell towers.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

EMF Real Estate Survey Results: “Neighborhood Cell Towers & Antennas—Do They Impact a Property’s Desirability?”

The National Institute for Science, Law and Public Policy’s survey “Neighborhood Cell Towers & Antennas—Do They Impact a Property’s Desirability?” initiated June 2, 2014, has now been completed by 1,000 respondents as of June 28, 2014. The survey, which circulated online through email and social networking sites, in both the U.S. and abroad, sought to determine if nearby cell towers and antennas, or wireless antennas placed on top of or on the side of a building, would impact a home buyer’s or renter’s interest in a real estate property.

The overwhelming majority of respondents (94%) reported that cell towers and antennas in a neighborhood or on a building would impact interest in a property and the price they would be willing to pay for it. And 79% said under no circumstances would they ever purchase or rent a property within a few blocks of a cell tower or antenna.

- 94% said a nearby cell tower or group of antennas would negatively impact interest in a property or the price they would be willing to pay for it.
- 94% said a cell tower or group of antennas on top of, or attached to, an apartment building would negatively impact interest in the apartment building or the price they would be willing to pay for it.
- 95% said they would opt to buy or rent a property that had zero antennas on the building over a comparable property that had several antennas on the building.
- 79% said under no circumstances would they ever purchase or rent a property within a few blocks of a cell tower or antennas.
- 88% said that under no circumstances would they ever purchase or rent a property with a cell tower or group of antennas on top of, or attached to, the apartment building.
- 89% said they were generally concerned about the increasing number of cell towers and antennas in their residential neighborhood.

The National Institute for Science, Law and Public Policy (NISLAPP) was curious if respondents had previous experience with physical or cognitive effects of wireless radiation, or if their concern about neighborhood antennas was unrelated to personal experience with the radiation. Of the 1,000 respondents, 57% had previously experienced cognitive effects from radiation emitted by a cell phone, wireless router, portable phone, utility smart meter, or neighborhood antenna or cell tower, and 43% had not experienced cognitive effects. 63% of respondents had previously experienced physical effects from these devices or neighborhood towers and antennas and 37% had not experienced physical effects.

The majority of respondents provided contact information indicating they would like to receive the results of this survey or news related to the possible connection between neighborhood cell towers and antennas and real estate decisions.

Comments from real estate brokers who completed the NISLAPP survey:

“I am a real estate broker in NYC. I sold a townhouse that had a cell tower attached. Many potential buyers chose to avoid purchasing the property because of it. There was a long lease.”

“I own several properties in Santa Fe, NM and believe me, I have taken care not to buy near cell towers. Most of these are rental properties and I think I would have a harder time renting those units... were a cell tower or antenna nearby. Though I have not noticed any negative health effects myself, I know many people are affected. And in addition, these antennas and towers are often extremely ugly—despite the attempt in our town of hiding them as chimneys or fake trees.”

“We are home owners and real estate investors in Marin County and have been for the last 25 years. We own homes and apartment building here in Marin. We would not think of investing in real estate that would harm our tenants. All our properties are free of smart meters. Thank you for all of your work.”

“I’m a realtor. I’ve never had a single complaint about cell phone antennae. Electric poles, on the other hand, are a huge problem for buyers.”

Concern was expressed in the comments section by respondents about potential property valuation declines near antennas and cell towers. While the NISLAPP survey did not evaluate property price declines, a study on this subject by Sandy Bond, PhD of the New Zealand Property Institute, and Past President of the Pacific Rim Real Estate Society (PRRES), The Impact of Cell Phone Towers on House Prices in Residential Neighborhoods (<http://snurl.com/2922m58>), was published in The Appraisal Journal of the Appraisal Institute in 2006. The Appraisal Institute is the largest global professional organization for appraisers with 91 chapters. The study indicated that homebuyers would pay from 10%–19% less to over 20% less for a property if it were in close proximity to a cell phone base station. The ‘opinion’ survey results were then confirmed by a market sales analysis. The results of the sales analysis showed prices of properties were reduced by around 21% after a cell phone base station was built in the neighborhood.”

The Appraisal Journal study added,

“Even buyers who believe that there are no adverse health effects from cell phone base stations, knowing that other potential buyers might think the reverse, will probably seek a price discount for a property located near a cell phone base station.”

James S. Turner, Esq., Chairman of the National Institute for Science, Law & Public Policy and Partner, Swankin & Turner in Washington, D.C., says,

“The recent NISLAPP survey suggests there is now a high level of awareness about potential risks from cell towers and antennas. In addition, the survey indicates respondents believe they have personally experienced cognitive (57%) or physical (63%) effects from radiofrequency radiation from towers, antennas or other radiating devices, such as cell phones, routers, smart meters and other consumer electronics. Almost 90% are concerned about the increasing number of cell towers and antennas generally. A study of real estate sales prices would be beneficial at this time in the United States to determine what discounts homebuyers are currently placing on properties near cell towers and antennas. Americans deserve to know.”

Betsy Lehrfeld, Esq., an attorney and Executive Director of NISLAPP, says,

“The proliferation of this irradiating infrastructure throughout our country would never have occurred in the first place had Section 704 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 not prohibited state and local governments from regulating the placement of wireless facilities on health or environmental grounds. The federal preemption leaves us in a situation today where Americans are clearly concerned about risks from antennas and towers, some face cognitive and physical health consequences, yet they and their families increasingly have no choice but to endure these exposures, while watching their real property valuations decline.”

The National Institute for Science, Law, and Public Policy (NISLAPP) in Washington, D.C. was founded in 1978 to bridge the gap between scientific uncertainties and the need for laws protecting public health and safety. Its overriding objective is to bring practitioners of science and law together to develop intelligent policy that best serves all interested parties in a given controversy. Its focus is on the points at which these two disciplines converge.

Good afternoon,

I am writing to comment on the Falling Branch Cell Tower Case #2021-00398 in Falls of Rough, Kentucky.

Imagine, you are out on the lake, and you have a heart attack, or on the beach and have a heat stroke, or you're in your own home and you fall and hit your head giving you a gash across your head, you reach for your cell phone and call an ambulance but there is no service!! A Cell Tower is desperately needed in Falls of Rough, KY.

I love going down to Falls of Rough visiting family, but I am always concerned about not being able to get a signal incase I need to contact my children or God forbid, there is an emergency and can't be reached because there is no signal.

I have seen where the tower will be built, it is back off the road and, on a hill, and trees will be hiding it from the neighbors. If you stop and think about it, those that oppose this, may be after monetary funds because why else would anyone oppose having the technology that is so desperately needed. Those opposing it will be using it as well because they have a business online selling their wares.

We, as a society, have the technology, we use it every day for work, for school, for recreation. It's time to "Update" the rural counties as well.

I hope you vote for the tower because Falls of Rough, KY NEEDS the Cell Tower!

Thank you.

This is in reference to case number 2021-00398, cell phone tower installation approval.

My family and I are in support of installing a new communication cell tower in the area around Rough River. We have family that live in that area, and we visit for not only family activities but also for the activities in the area such as boating, fishing and kayaking.

We truly enjoy coming down there, but in today's society, communication with other individuals and the access to apps on your phone like google maps is important to get around without getting lost, plus if there is a medical emergency, cell signals are very limited in many places.

I think it would be a great benefit to have that tower in that location to not only benefit the local residents, but also all those that come to that area to vacation and enjoy the activities in the area.

You have a resident that is willing to have the tower placed on their property to benefit everyone in the area. I see this as a good thing.

Thank You!

[REDACTED]

Good afternoon,

I am writing on behalf of the Nicolai family regarding the proposed tower at 2589 Blue Bird Road, Falls of Rough, KY 40119.

I have known Janelle Nicolai since she was a little girl. I have known the family for nearly 30 years. Janelle and Roger's story is extraordinary and worth deep and sober consideration with this issue. This family is devoted to making Kentucky a place for family, productivity, commerce, and investment to the community.

Janelle and Roger have a love story and were happily married, as I personally witnessed. Soon after the wedding, Roger experienced a devastating injury while in the military- we prayed and prayed for his survival, as others had died in this same event. It was a miracle that he survived, but it was an uphill battle for him and for Janelle. In addition, Roger's father died from complications of the Gulf War. His mother died soon after of cancer. Roger and Janelle are "survivors" beyond which most of us can even imagine.

They rebuilt their lives with a vision and bought property in Kentucky to develop an organic farm to serve the community and sustain their family. It was a huge leap of faith, but they endured the challenges and now have come to thrive as a valued member of the community. They have overcome so many obstacles to get to this point. I don't know very many others I admire as much as Roger and Janelle. As their family grew, this became their home and they have offered to share their bounty and give back to others.

Though the need for the tower is evident in this area, the location is negotiable. To harm this family and what they contribute to the community would be a travesty. Does the neighbor who will benefit financially from this tower offer as much back to the community as the Nicolai family? This should be considered with great discernment and wisdom.

I would propose a relocation to protect, at the very least, this remarkable family and the sacrifices they have endured. Roger served our country and was wounded. That in itself should be cause to reconsider this relocation. It is time to honor our military heroes and stop looking for self-preservation and financial gain at the expense of our valued veterans. If necessary, bring in resources to elevate the tower in another place if necessary - wow we move soil every day when building new structures. It can be done. There are lots of options other than harming this family's investment and future.

PLEASE consider alternate locations and movement of soil for elevation if needed to prevent economic loss for the Nicolai Family and their farm that is a valuable asset to YOUR community. If an alternate location cannot be agreed upon, please deny the tower application from New Cingular Wireless/AT&T and Tillman Infrastructure. It is time to put these people's lives above technology and advancement at their personal cost.

Respectfully,

My name is Clifford Newton, and I want to say that I am very much in favor of the Falling Branch Cell Tower (case#2012-00398). I have family and friends from there as well as several other friends that visit on weekends. It sometimes is hard to hold a phone conversation with any of them when I call to check in. My mom is 80 years old and frequently visits my brother for several days at a time. Without adequate cell service it is nerve wrecking trying to check in on her as well. I believe this would only benefit the residences by providing them with the opportunity to contact emergency services if needed. Again, I am favor of the tower moving forward.

Thanks,
