Dear Commissioners

Case #2024-00115 KY Power DSM Case

I fully support the addition of solar farms to power Lexington's households and businesses into the future. The city is growing rapidly because it's a wonderful place to live. With more people and more energy-heavy activities, power needs will only increase. But with more burning of fossil fuels, global temperatures and severe, destructive weather in our area will only increase. We need to prioritize development of clean energy sources, and solar farms done right will be a great step forward. Energy costs for consumers should be lower with such facilities being added to the grid. It is also important to consider land use for farming when commissioning these sites. I fear that this Commission and others around the country may bow to pressure to preserve farmland above installing clean energy sources. I hope this Commission and others press advocates to come together to reach solutions that work for everyone. There are best practices from other jurisdictions mapping out how to maximize both energy production and agricultural yield. The Commission should be educated on those practices to make informed decisions.

Thank you for reading my comment.

Sincerely,
Raquel Wilson

Dear Commissioners

Case #2024-00115 KY Power DSM Case

Although I am not a customer of KY Power, I do have concern regarding the building of a new solar farm until more measures are taken to help your customers either make energy saving amendments to their homes/businesses or make it easier for them to purchase rooftop solar. . Also, if owners could be encouraged to plant more trees to shade their homes/businesses, that would be another measure to not only reduce heat but help the environment. These measures might reduce the need to build such a large solar farm.

If you still believe it is necessary to build the farm, I hope it can be constructed in a sustainable manner.

Sincerely,
Mary Miller

Dear Commissioners

Case #2024-00115 KY Power DSM Case

As a young renter in Lexington I think about the cost of my utilities and ability to pay my bills every month. I would love to see Fayette County support the creation of these solar farms because in the end our utility bills will be cheaper, and I can actually envision a sustainable future for myself. Many of my friends lost power 2 winters ago with huge energy demands that left many folks without power for 2 weeks in the dead of winter. Creating more opportunities for solar means there are less strains on our system and more likelihood that our homes can get the energy supply they need, especially to support heating and cooling which is so crucial in a changing climate!

Sincerely,
Kat Smith
