Comments:

I have attempted a comparison of the rates in the Nov 2024 Order and the Order issued Dec 2025. Please do your own analysis, I used Excel but I could have made an error. What I calculated shows an approximately 67% increase in the sale for resale rate. Hopefully, others have pointed out the magnitude of the increase. Please let me know the percentage of the increase from the 2024 Order to 2025 Order which the PSC believes is accurate. This should be a substantial factor as the PSC considers the treatment of sales for resale customers rate which should be approved in the current case. Remember that these may be largely, if not all, residential customers.

Comments:

In the PSC Order in Case 2025-00122, the PSC decided, without substantive explanation, to require a higher rate for sales for resale customers. This rate was changed from the lower rate that was advertised by KY American as part of its case filing. There was no notice to wholesale customers that a significantly higher rate would be authorized. If the PSC was concerned about the rates for residential customers, as was stated in the order, did it PSC not understand that they were shifting the burden of rates from one group of residential customers to another. Look at the KAWC 2025 annual report and you will see the list of sale for resale customers. They include Nicholasville, Peaks Mill, Georgetown and more. I hope that the PSC simply did not fully comprehend who would be paying the increases. It seems it is residential customers, just not those who are directly customers of Kentucky American. I dont recall that this had ever before happened. It seems fundamentally unfair. Please correct this wrong by reducing the rates to wholesale customers. Do the right thing. Thanks for your review and consideration. Who will be reading the comments? If I am incorrect in anyway, please advise.
