Such purchases shall be:

- (A) at the base supplier rate
- (B) at the new supplier rate

The difference between these amounts show the total change in purchased gas costs.

- (2) The total change in purchased gas costs shall be divided by the actual number of cubic feet of gas sold by Case Enterprises, Inc. during said 12-month period, yielding the purchased gas adjustment expressed in cents per cubic feet, unless Case's gas loss exceeds 5 percent. The unit charge or credit so determined shall be the purchased gas adjustment applicable to consumer billings.

In instances where the gas loss exceeds 5 percent, the actual gas sales shall be divided by 95 percent, yielding the maximum allowable gas purchases. The maximum allowable gas purchases shall be multiplied by the base supplier rate and new supplier rate with the difference yielding the total allowable change. The total allowable change shall then be divided by the actual number of cubic feet of gas sold by Case Enterprises, Inc. during the said 12-month period, yielding the unit charge or credit approval to consumer billings.

- (3) The new supplier rate shall become the base supplier rate to be used in measuring the effect of any subsequent supplier rate change. Each such subsequent change shall be treated in the same manner as set forth above for the establishment of a new purchased gas adjustment and for the establishment of a new base supplier rate.
